ABOUT OFFICE RELOCATION

To any companies, office relocation is important but tedious. Starting from location hunting till the end of the project, customers are inevitably confronted by endless challenges that make the removal annoying and time-consuming. If there is any problem in co-ordination between various contractors and the removal vendor, the relocation may probably delay. More importantly, any problem with equipments such as server or telephone system during removal may cause serious disturbance to the daily operation of your company. At the same time, relocation is also annoying given that it takes lots of time to tidy up one's workplace.
